

9. Project Information

A wide-variety of projects are offered; some require detailed and careful laboratory experimentation, others are challenging computer simulations of industrial processes, and some others are open-ended developmental projects.

Project titles and the associated faculty supervisors are displayed in Table 9.1. A brief description (and in some cases additional resources) for each project can be found in the “Project Information” module on the course onQ website.

In most cases, Students will obtain additional detailed information about projects from their Supervisor during their initial meeting.
